

ABSTRACT

An electronic learning system (ELS) provides access to an electronic course that is hosted by an external system that is not part of the ELS. The ELS includes a front end that 5 exchanges communications with the external system to obtain access to the electronic course, a learning portal that runs software to view the electronic course, and a back end that stores information that relates to the electronic course.

10

20675267.doc